

The Iron Hostility of a Sulphate World

I'm not British. I merely learned to spell sulfate this way when I was a boy reading books.

VINYASI

APR 28, 2026

Is Free Energy for Real?

The End is Only the Beginning.

Read more

6 months ago · 1 like · 1 comment · Vinyasi

Sulfur encourages the absorption of iron due to the ease with which the sulfate ion dissolves iron in water. This makes it easy for creatures, who live on a sulfate world, to absorb too much iron. This has the impact of encouraging hostility and a hot temper. This is ironic (pun accepted) since sulfate worlds exemplify the silver ratio of one plus the square root of two, or 2.414, which are worlds in which the sacred (selfless) use of power is the main theme, or karmic lesson, to learn.

This is ironic because Maldek was a planet — which was located in the middle of the present-day asteroid belt (~250 million miles from Earth's orbit) in which many old souls of Earth once lived on millions of years ago before the population of that planet went bonkers and destroyed themselves along with their moon, which we know of as: Mars.

Venus doesn't have this risk since Venus, according to NASA, has dipotassium hydrogen phosphate predominating on the surface of that planet. Phosphorus counterpoises the hostility of iron.

The chloride salt of our Earth prohibits the easy access to iron from our soils. So, Earthlings don't have the risk that Maldek possessed.

Earth was originally in the Pleiades constellation, before being removed from there to take up its new position here, to replace the lack of sufficient planetary-sized electrical load lest our sun blow up from not enough electrical damping (after the destruction of Maldek).

So, it's possible to have too much iron in our bloodstream just as it is possible to have too little. Too much, and we go to war; too little, and we're such sweeties that we readily become victims of someone else's hostility.

You're probably wondering to yourself: "how does he know all this stuff?" Or, is he just making it up?

There's no reason for me to know this if it weren't my karma...my past.

There's no reason for me to make this up since I have no need to fantasize. That's the hazard of clairvoyance: it reduces the need for fantasizing when life (as it is) is entertainment enough!

So, what happened?

Charlie Lutes was an alcoholic during an incarnation of his soul on Maldek in which he became enlightened for the first time as a human being. I was a young child, a girl, who was the only person who believed in him. My devotion to him sobered him up so that he could become enlightened but with the consequence that he didn't want my affections anymore, now that he was enlightened, making me a nuisance to continue to hang around. So, he kicked me out of his nest and transferred me to someone else.

That infuriated me. No one else was good enough for me to be with.

My anger spilled over into my next incarnation in which I became a mad (crazy) scientist who headed up a team of scientists, acting together with a team of politicians (headed by the prior incarnation of John F. Kennedy), and we instituted a machine which tempted those who inherited this technology after my death to mismanage it leading to the destruction of Maldek along with the collateral damage done to its moon: Mars.

That spoiled Charlie's bliss while he was ensconced in the seventh plane of consciousness (since he no longer needed to reincarnate) awaiting absorption into the Absolute.

So, he was called back by Mother Divine to help Earthlings since the refugees of Maldek needed a place to continue their evolution. So, they waited for the Earth to acquire a moon. And on our moon, was the "gray people" as Charlie called them. We know them as: the gray aliens.

We mingled among them: we, the human grays, and they, the highly intelligent animal grays all mixed up on the same satellite planetary body in orbit around this Earth.

We went to war amongst the human grays, fighting among ourselves (as we are prone to do), went nuts (again) and initiated the ionization of the moon's upper atmosphere (since it had a substantial atmosphere at that time sufficient to support life) which led to the molecules of the atmosphere reaching escape velocity causing a gradual peeling away of the moon's atmosphere at a rate of loss sufficiently slow enough for us to scramble at making spaceships to leave the moon and come to the Earth during the third (red) root race of Atlantis and move to the forefront of Earth's civilizations and have remained at the forefront ever since.

Charlie returned as an avatar to help extricate us from our trauma. He first incarnated as: Horus — since Atlantis, during its latter days, was into mixing up animal genes with human genes producing hybrid beasts. He came with the knowledge of the compass since Atlanteans had forgotten technological information. Machines had been built to last for generations. This caused everyone to forget what it took to fabricate those machines and, instead, inherited those machines from prior generations and devolved into the abuse of that technological hardware. Hence, Atlantis was scheduled for destruction.

So, Horus (with his perfect vision) went around the country of Atlantis and gathered up anyone who had auras that were not defiled with a smokey cloud. This indicated that they were not into the abuse of power. He took them on ships to the Gizeh plateau. The last shipload of refugees arrived just as the tiny wavelets of the sinking of Atlantis lapped the shoreline of Gizeh.

Is Free Energy for Real?

Painful Memories

Read more

6 months ago · Vinyasi

Is Free Energy for Real?

What if Earth exploded?

This Earth has been the Cosmic Backup Plan for the explosion of Maldek (in between Mars and Jupiter) replacing it since all of its inhabitants who were not enlightened needed somewhere to continue to...

Read more

5 months ago · Vinyasi

Is Free Energy for Real?

The Day the Earth Stood Still - 1951

I know this (seemingly) has nothing to do with the study of free energy, but I can't help noting that this movie references the distance which Klaatu travels to Earth is the average distance between ...

Read more

4 months ago · 1 like · Vinyasi

Is Free Energy for Real?

Aliens on the Moon: The Truth Exposed

Aliens on the Moon: The Truth Exposed...

Read more

5 months ago · Vinyasi

Is Free Energy for Real?

Mars: Water, Life, Pyramids and UFOs.

Read more

4 months ago · Vinyasi

Blue Planet Red | Mars Disclosure

